

Cultural Attractions and Leisure Activities

Berlin – that means 3.4 million inhabitants, 170 museums, 300 galleries, castles, churches, countless parks, operas, theaters, movie theaters, clubs, bars & cafés. The visitor can quickly lose track of things. But it is precisely this diversity that makes Berlin so unique; it is also this diversity that we want to discover and experience along with our guests!

Come with us as we search for clues, plunge into history and then succumb to the charm, the modern-day charisma, of this constantly evolving city.

We – the team at the Carl Duisberg Training Center Berlin – organize a varied program of leisure activities for our course participants. On our personally guided walking tours of the city, for instance, you can relive Berlin's history, or else join us for an interesting guided tour of one of the many museums the city has to offer.

For us, though, leisure time means more than history, art and culture; after all, our fascinating city also has a bevy of bars, cafés and bars to choose from.

Come with us and discover the different districts and faces of this multicultural metropolis. Every Friday, for instance, we invite our guests to join us at the "regulars' table". Here, you will have an opportunity to explore Berlin's nightlife, comparing notes with other students about new impressions and experiences – and practicing your newly acquired German skills in the process.

Our leisure program offers highlight for athletically inclined course participants, too: Whether we are learning salsa dancing to enchanting South American rhythms, climbing together, playing badminton or going bowling, we always provide for a familiar and friendly atmosphere.

On the weekend, we schedule trips to Potsdam and to other sights all around Berlin. If several course participants are interested, we even arrange to travel to Hamburg, Dresden or to Weimar.

With our leisure program, we want to bring the different facets of Berlin closer, giving you the opportunity to get to know fellow students outside the classroom setting, to make new friends, to discover different cultures and ways of life, and, even though home is far away, to feel at home here with us.
